CARTER HARRISON.

The causeless murder of Hon. Carter Harrison by a lunatic is a most pitiable business. There have been times in the past when The Tribune has criticised Mr. Harrison most severely, because of the accumulated testimony of the press of Chicago that he was a dishonest man. The writer of this watched him for an hour last August when he appeared before the silver convention in Chicago, and understood then what never was made plain before, why, against the united press of that city, that one man could prevail. These were the reasons why: He was a politician, and while, in the handling of all classes of voters, he used methods which would not do in orthodox church service, his bearing before that convention showed exactly what he was. In the first place, he was a true man; in the second place, a warm-hearted man; in the third place, a man with the courage of his convictions, and with that courage so pronounced that friend and enemy alike knew that if he failed to carry anything through which he believed to be right, it would not be because his heart failed him at a critical moment. Then, by the various words which he used in making that address, which, by the way, was against the entire press of Chicago, he showed that down deep he was a wonderfully human man, and that the cry of the humblest to him for help would always be heard; that his heart was always with the masses, with those who struggled against a hard world and a fiery competition for bread, and, understanding that, it was clear why he had such an influence over the masses of Chicago. His death was a mighty loss to that city. He was a candidate for the United States Senate, and, supposing he could have won that honor, his death is a loss to the Nation. He was a very great man. We can imagine where, in an emergency, he would follow his party to ruin, but we can imagine, also, that in another emergency he would lead this country out of the depths, and be to it what Abraham Lincoln is to-day. If his methods will not bear the test of the style of politicians that George William Curtis was, and such as Senator Hoar and Lodge now are, still we would rather have trusted him with the handling of something in which all the people of this country are interested, than a whole Senate full of those goody-goodies who know nothing of the handling of the rougher elements of society, in a way to make a grade for Success and the right to walk over. The fact that he was strong enough, against the united press of the great city, simply by his personal contact with men, to win the Mayorship five times, shows that the man not only possessed magnificent abilities, but that there was something in the heart of him which appealed directly to the so-called lower strata of society. The best thing that can be said of him will be that, in a thousand humble homes in Chicago, the homes of the poor, the homes of those who live but from day to day and from hand to mouth, the news of his death will come as a personal bereavement—Salt Lake Tribune.

Her Head Cut Off.

Berlin, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Emilie Zeilman was executed here yesterday for the murder of her husband. She was the first woman executed in Berlin since 1846. She was decapitated by a headman with a sword.

Henry Berthold is the name of the man who held a piece of tubing to the head of Constables Carroll and Hanks at Stockton the other night while the officers were returning to the city in a buggy, with the object of frightening them into handing over their money. He is a Mexican and is crazy.

The charge of arson against Trotter, the owner of the dye works at Spokane, has been dismissed. This is the case where an explosion killed Mrs. Beane and the works were set on fire. It was stated that Trotter had fired the building in order to obtain the insurance.
